

Small Animal Internal Medicine Consultant

We are expanding our Global Medical Consulting team at IDEXX and are looking for bilingual Internal Medicine Specialists to support our European customers (part-time or full-time).

As a Small Animal Internal Medicine Consultant, you will help veterinary practitioners with diagnostic test selection, interpretation of laboratory result and case management, including treatment options.

Are you a Board-Certified Internal Medicine Specialist (ECVIM or ACVIM) and looking for a new opportunity and challenge? Would you enjoy working from home, providing phone consultations to veterinary surgeons in the UK and other European countries? If so, apply today, and come join our team!

Job locations: Remote from Europe or the United Kingdom

About the team:

The Medical Consulting Team at IDEXX strives to enhance veterinary care. We place a strong focus on peer-to-peer education and developing relationships with our colleagues in practice. Our veterinary team works closely with our commercial and laboratory team to ensure the highest quality in diagnostic solutions.

In this role, you will...

- During regular working hours, consult with clients via phone regarding diagnostic testing, laboratory results (both reference laboratory and in house testing), treatment options and management of medical cases.
- Discuss tests offered by IDEXX (reference laboratory and in-house diagnostics), specimen requirements, clinical utility of each test and how to interpret results.

- Maintain proficiency and continually develop medical knowledge base by self-study, attending scientific meetings, participation in internal continuing education, and maintaining familiarity with current literature.
- Potentially be asked to develop and present internal and/or external CPD presentations.
- Potentially be asked to prepare newsletter articles to be included in IDEXX newsletters; writing or reviewing laboratory diagnostic or service updates on new products or services; or prepare other marketing, sales or promotional material.

What you will need to succeed:

- You should be a diplomate of the European College of Veterinary Internal Medicine (ECVIM) or the American College of Veterinary Internal Medicine (ACVIM). Individuals with extensive clinical experience who are ECVIM or ACVIM board-eligible will also be considered. In addition, a current veterinary license in good standing is required.
- Fluency in English is required for this position, in addition to fluency in at least one other European language. Additional language skills are an advantage in this international company.
- A collaborative, service-oriented approach to work is essential in our team, as is ability to work independently.
- Computer literacy and a reliable, high-speed internet connection are required.
- For this position you will work from a home office but might, from time to time, be required to travel to an IDEXX reference laboratory or the European Headquarters in Hoofddorp.

What we offer:

When you join IDEXX, you will find yourself in a challenging but exciting environment where you are given the opportunity to be yourself, innovate, and grow. We have so much to offer!

- From day one, you will get full autonomy in your work and ample support when you need it.
- You will join a successful team who is proud of the work they do and motivated by their unified purpose of helping others.
- You will work with people who are inspiring, open, and the best in their operating space.
- We believe in you – with a team of over 10,000 all over the globe, there are lots of opportunities for learning, personal growth, and career expansion.

- You'll be part of a double-digit growth company in a quickly growing market and we are leading the way forward with innovative products, services, and a strong focus on our customers.

Our Mission:

We're proud of the work we do, because our work matters. Every role at IDEXX contributes to enhancing the health and well-being of pets, people, and livestock. With over 10,000 global team members, customers in over 175 countries, and a fast-growing industry - we're always looking for motivated and inspiring people to join us.

A significant portion of our growth is happening all across Europe and with growth comes opportunity! We offer competitive compensation, incentives, and benefits. Our company culture is built on our unified commitment to our mission and our offices are rich with a diversity of languages, cultures, and ways of working.
