Location: Stuttgart, Germany

Institution: AniCura Tierklinik Stuttgart

Position: Head of Internal Medicine Department

Employment: Full-time or Part-time

About Us

AniCura Tierklinik Stuttgart is one of Germany's largest and most modern veterinary hospitals, equipped with advanced diagnostic and therapeutic technology. Our specialist departments are each led by board-certified experts, ensuring a high standard of interdisciplinary collaboration and patient care.

Located in Stuttgart - a culturally vibrant, internationally oriented city surrounded by vineyards, museums, and nature - our hospital offers an exceptional professional and personal environment.

Position Overview

We are seeking a highly qualified ACVIM / ECVIM-CA Diplomate, a veterinarian who has completed a internal medicine residency, to lead our Internal Medicine Department.

The position can be filled full-time or part-time, depending on the candidate's preferences.

The ideal candidate combines clinical excellence with a passion for teaching and is motivated to help develop the next generation of internal medicine-focused veterinarians.

This senior role offers the opportunity to shape a high-level specialty department within a collaborative, specialist-driven environment.

About the Hospital

Our hospital provides comprehensive referral-level care supported by:

- Advanced diagnostic imaging (CT, MRI, fluoroscopy)
- High-end ultrasound and a complete endoscopy suite
- Interventional capabilities including SUB placement and PCCL procedures
- Full in-house laboratory
- Modern surgical theaters

Primary Responsibilities

- Leadership and strategic development of the Internal Medicine department
- Management of complex internal medicine cases
- Performance and interpretation of advanced diagnostics and interventional procedures
- Close collaboration with Surgery, Cardiology, Oncology, Neurology, and other specialty teams
- Teaching and mentorship of interns, residents, and junior clinicians
- Opportunity to develop subspecialty interests such as Nephrology or Gastroenterology

Qualifications

- Diplomate ACVIM / ECVIM-CA, or completion of an approved residency program
- Strong clinical background in small-animal internal medicine
- Interest in teaching, mentoring, and service development
- Excellent communication and teamwork skills
- Ability to communicate fluently in either English or German (proficiency in both is welcome; German language training can be supported)

What We Offer

- Senior leadership role in a premier European referral hospital
- Competitive compensation and relocation support
- Generous continuing education allowance
- Access to state-of-the-art diagnostic and interventional equipment
- Supportive, specialist-driven clinical culture
- Flexible working models, including part-time options
- Support for partners, especially veterinarians, including assistance in job placement within our network - and potential employment opportunities within our clinic
- Life in Stuttgart: international schools, rich cultural scene, excellent infrastructure, and outstanding quality of life, located close to the Stuttgart airport and about one hour from one of Europe's largest airports (Frankfurt)
