Discipline-Specific Internships – Internal Medicine & Oncology

Locations: Vets Now Specialist Referrals – Manchester & Glasgow

Salary: £35,000 per annum | 12-Month Programme | Starting 5th April 2027

Take the Next Step in Your Veterinary Career

Are you an enthusiastic veterinary surgeon looking to develop your expertise in Internal Medicine or Oncology?

Vets Now Specialist Referrals is delighted to offer exciting 12-month Discipline-Specific Internship (DSI) opportunities across our specialist referral hospitals in Manchester and Glasgow, commencing on 5th April 2027.

These structured, supportive internships provide the opportunity to work alongside experienced specialists, gain hands-on clinical experience and develop the knowledge and skills needed to progress towards a residency, complete a certificate or advance your career in referral practice.

Our Internship Opportunities

Manchester – Internal Medicine

Based at our multidisciplinary, 24/7 small animal referral hospital, this internship offers 12 months of structured learning within a friendly and supportive Internal Medicine team.

You will benefit from close supervision and mentorship from an ECVIM-CA specialist and an experienced RCVS-recognised Advanced Practitioner in Small Animal Medicine and Cardiology.

As a newly established position, the programme offers flexibility to tailor training to the successful applicant's experience and career aspirations, with opportunities for primary case responsibility, advanced procedural training and clinical research.

Glasgow – Internal Medicine & Oncology

Based at our busy multidisciplinary referral hospital in the heart of Glasgow, this internship offers a split rotation between Internal Medicine and Oncology.

You will work closely with experienced ECVIM-CA specialists and Oncology clinicians, gaining exposure to a diverse caseload, advanced diagnostics and specialist treatments.

The programme also offers opportunities for rotations across other disciplines, external placements, clinical research and structured learning. The hospital supports established internship programmes and EBVS residency training in Emergency and Critical Care, with Diagnostic Imaging residency training planned.

Please note: The Glasgow internship includes a 1:6 weekend rota providing out-of-hours cover.

What You'll Be Doing

As a Discipline-Specific Intern, you will:

- Work alongside experienced specialists to investigate, diagnose and manage a wide range of Internal Medicine and/or Oncology cases.
- Participate in clinical case planning, treatment and ongoing patient management, with opportunities to take primary case responsibility.

- Develop practical skills through supervised procedures and exposure to advanced diagnostic equipment.
- Contribute to case discussions, seminars, journal clubs and teaching activities.
- Engage in clinical research, independent study and professional development.
- Maintain accurate clinical records and deliver exceptional patient and client care.
- Work collaboratively with colleagues across multiple disciplines, contributing to a positive and supportive hospital environment.

What We're Looking For

We welcome applications from motivated veterinary surgeons with a genuine passion for Internal Medicine and/or Oncology.

To be considered, you will need:

- A veterinary degree recognised by the RCVS.
- Current RCVS registration or eligibility to register.
- Eligibility to work in the UK (visa sponsorship may be available, subject to discussion).
- Strong communication and English language skills (IELTS or TOEFL certification is desirable).
- A commitment to high clinical standards, professional integrity and excellent patient care.
- A proactive, collaborative approach and enthusiasm for continued learning.
- Previous completion of a rotating internship is desirable but not essential for either location.

What We Offer

We are committed to supporting your professional development and providing an excellent foundation for your future career.

Salary & Benefits

- £35,000 annual salary
- 7 weeks' annual leave, plus your birthday off
- RCVS and VDS registration fees covered
- Paid CPD allowance and dedicated CPD time
- Supportive mentorship from experienced clinicians and specialists

Learning & Development

- Structured clinical training with hands-on case involvement
- Regular seminars, journal clubs and teaching opportunities

- Opportunities for clinical research and independent study
- Advanced procedural training, including endoscopy, bone marrow biopsy and feeding tube placement, with additional procedures depending on location
- Opportunities for externships, external placements or conference attendance, depending on location and programme requirements
- Access to advanced diagnostic facilities, including CT, fluoroscopy and endoscopy

Why Choose Vets Now Specialist Referrals?

Both our Manchester and Glasgow hospitals offer the opportunity to develop your clinical expertise within multidisciplinary teams, supported by experienced specialists, advanced facilities and dedicated nursing colleagues.

Manchester offers a collaborative Internal Medicine service within a 24/7 referral and emergency hospital, with access to advanced imaging, including 16-slice CT, and specialist endoscopy. The hospital is conveniently located within commuting distance of central Manchester.

Glasgow provides a unique opportunity to gain combined Internal Medicine and Oncology experience, supported by multidisciplinary collaboration and advanced facilities including 64-slice CT. Located in Scotland's largest city, the hospital offers access to Glasgow's vibrant cultural scene and the outstanding Scottish countryside.

Whether your ambition is to pursue specialist residency training, develop advanced clinical skills or strengthen your knowledge before taking the next step in your career, our internships offer the support and experience to help you achieve your goals.
